[Because she's so sage and sassy]

[Because she's so honest and unscripted]

[Because she's so wide open and tuned in]

Cooper is quick. Think of her as Nascar On-Air. Amidst the fast flow of a live radio broadcast, she steers The Cooper Lawrence Show down a quirky, captivating track. "Once it came up that I used to be a foot model, so people started calling in with bizarre jobs they'd had," says the bronze-voiced 12-year broadcast veteran. "I love the immediacy of radio, that you never know where you'll end up." But her fans (the seven-month-old show premiered in Charlotte and is syndicated nationally) know they'll end up entertained and feeling connected. "People need to know they're not alone in the world," says Cooper. As host of call-in show Pajama Party on Z100, she was amazed by the intimate questions young women were asking, and "I realized there was something more I could do." She got her PhD in psychology and started bringing real-world wisdom to women via FM talk radio. Cooper also frequently appears on "ShowBiz Tonight," writes a column for CosmoGirl! and is the author of *The Guide to Guys and Been There, Done That, Keep the Jewelry: Stay Tuned for her upcoming title with skirt! Magazine Books/Globe Pequot Press *The Cut of Perfection: How to Make Peace with Your Inner Overachiever.
