

LINDA HOGAN

Hulk Cheated... in Our Bed

THE LEGAL WRASSLIN' BETWEEN LINDA Bollea, 49, and her hubby of 24 years, wrestler Hulk Hogan, 55, is far from over. In a venomous statement, Bollea, who filed for divorce in November 2007, accuses Hogan of sleeping with their daughter Brooke's "BFF" — in their marital bed. Bollea, who gets $40,000 a month in temporary alimony, also says he is hiding assets in nine shell companies. Saying Hogan earned "up to a million dollars a month," she seeks more cash to defray legal fees "caused by Hulk's deceptive tactics." Hogan's rep slams the charges, telling Us: "Linda is trying to sell to the public lies she's been unable to prove in court." Adds Brooke, 20, "I just don't get my mom."

Bollea accuses him of spending $20,000 a month on human growth hormone.

WHOOPS! OF THE WEEK

Kring later called his remarks "stupid."

HEROES CREATOR Tim Kring probably wishes he could go back in time and fix a mistake like Hiro Nakamura can. At an event in L.A. November 15, the writer-producer, 51, called some of his most loyal fans "saps and dips--ts" because they watch his struggling NBC series live and not on DVR or online (which he considers "superior to watching it on air").

GAINING LBS FOR PARTS

MEMO TO HOLLYWOOD STARLETS: Thin is no longer in! From Fergie, 33, who feasted on fried foods to gain 13 pounds for her role as a prostitute in the 2009 musical Nine, to January Jones' '60s housewife in Mad Men, girls are being ordered to get some curves. "We're encouraged to not work out because women then weren't as defined," Jones, 30, tells Us. Beyoncé Knowles, 27, packed on 15 pounds to embody soul singer Etta James in Cadillac Records. "It wasn't the easiest thing," she tells Us. But director Darnell Martin says it was necessary. "Etta wasn't a tiny woman. . . . She walked differently and carried herself differently," he says. "It was really incredible, the physical change Beyoncé did. She's a glamour queen and she said, 'I'm not going to be that.'" New York-based image expert Cooper Lawrence tells Us the bigger-is-better mandate "says a lot about our culture that we are accepting women of real size," adding that "if Hollywood sees viewers are interested in somebody who looks like them, that's what they are going to give them."

YEAH, RIGHT, WE BELIEVE THAT!

Do these celebs really mean what they say? Probably not!

"I just love [my wrinkles]!" Kate Winslet, 33, said. "I am enjoying my face changing, as well as realizing that at the same time, as you get older, the machine isn't as well-oiled as it was."

"I think it is kind of awesome," Jennifer Aniston, 39, told pal Oprah Winfrey on Winfrey's November 13 show when asked how she felt about her impending 40th birthday. "[But] I'm still pretty immature."

"I really look forward to growing older. I love getting older," Cameron Diaz, 36, said. "I look forward to being in a retirement village with active seniors at some point. I think it would be awesome!"

"I'm proud of Barack Obama!" former Republican vice presidential candidate Sarah Palin, 44, told Larry King eight days after she and John McCain, 72, lost their bid for the White House.

Says a source of his appeal: "He's funny, which helps."

DAVID SPADE Unlikely Ladies' Man

Nicollette Sheridan is the latest to cozy up to the comic

How has Joe Dirt become the hottest bachelor in town? A source says it's because David Spade, 44, is "un-Hollywood, and that's refreshing to women used to flashy men." His hookup history: Nicollette Sheridan A source says the star, 45, and Spade "cuddled and kissed" at her L.A. birthday bash November 21.

"There was no vanity whatsoever," Martin says of Knowles in Cadillac Records.

Jones tells Us she eats "everything in moderation."

"I ate everything fried!" Fergie (on Nov. 21 in L.A.) says of filling out for Nine.
